“ Grandma,

I will always remember our morning breakfast's with the family surrounding the table. Your homemade chocolate gravy with biscuits placed upon the table with a loving smile on your face. How you would pat my leg as we would sit and talk. Snapping green beans outside on the porch while we would share a laugh and a smile. How when I was young you would chase me around the house with your flyswatter for being mischievous, always trying to catch me but wouldn't because you never intended to in the first place. How we would drive 12 hours to come and visit you from Texas, and how much fun we always had when we were there. Those time's came and went so fast, and before I knew it you were gone. How I will miss your voice, and your sweet kisses upon my cheek. Within 3 days I lost both of my last grandparent's. It has been difficult losing both of you so close together. But I know you are at rest, the both of you.

I imagine you and grandpa Singleton are holding hands once again after 22 years apart and looking down upon all of us, watching and waiting until we are united once again. My heart shall always be a little empty now that you have gone. The day we buried you, the sun shined so bright that morning through my bedroom window. I took a picture of that magnificent ray falling upon my window, knowing you were telling me everything was OK. I send you all of my love dear grandma. You will be forever missed and never forgotten. Give grandpa a kiss for me in haven, and if you wouldn't mind, say hello to grandpa Goodrich who followed so soon after you for me as well. Much love always and forever...

*Your granddaughter,
