“ My father passed away in November of 2001. I got married and moved to Arizona. After I moved, my mother and Pops got married. My mother asked me what I thought about her getting married again. I think what I told her kind of shocked her. I told her as long as she was happy, she has my blessings and I thought it was the greatest thing in the world. My mother wanted for nothing while Pops was around. He opened and held the doors for her. He pumped her gas. Just was a true gentleman to her. I could tell that he made her happy. They loved each other very much. I got to know Pops better when I moved back to Tennessee in 2019. I would go over to their house on Shady Hill Road, and we would sit on the front porch and talk of life. The subjects were politics, health, religion, construction, women, and good places to eat. One of our favorite subjects to talk about was Jesus Christ. We talked about how He had made both of our lives better. We talked about how blessed we were even though we had endured many hardships in our lives, we were blessed even though all these bad things had happened to us. I know he loved my mother dearly and she loved him the same way. I could talk to Pops about anything. Even though he was my step father, I felt like we had a true father/son relationship. And so it was. We talked about working construction and the various jobs that we had been on and the companies that we had worked for. I told him many times that I loved him and thanked him every time I saw him for taking care of my mother and how much that meant to me. The last time I saw him, I told him I loved him, and he wasn't doing to good but he looked right at me and told me he loved me too. I know Pops is in heaven now without all the worries of this world. He will be missed big. I love you Pops.
